The People's Column

Let us clean up the ugly spots in our county.

One of two things is bound to happen when traveling through the country, either you are impressed or depressed, and the thing which brings about this state of feeling, is ugliness, or beauty of the territory through which the road way winds its way. Not many days since in driving through the county, I passed some of the public, as well as private dump grounds, some of those I saw undoubtedly had been used for many years, for every imaginable thing, was to be seen, and then as the car rounded suddenly there would burst upon the scene a flower decked hill, a well painted and kept home along the road side. The first sight depressed me, for I could read in that ugly mess of refuse, the thoughtlessness of many, or a few persons as the case might be, and in the other scene I was impressed, for here was strikingly portrayed the consideration one owes to his neighbor as well as to himself. Surely when a community allows any place or spot along the highways, or even the byways to be used for dumping old broken and discarded implements, cars, furniture, household utensils, yes to dead dogs, it should it seems to me awaken us all to the realization that this practice is wrong, and should be stopped and it ought not to be necessary to invoke the majesty of the law to bring this step about, community interest and respect for those at home as well as the passerby should prompt a halt.

He gained the crown after a spectacular airplane coup d'état, believed to have been arranged by Prince Nicholas (lower right). Carol's son Michael, who ruled with a regency council, becomes crown prince and there are indications that King Carol's divorce from Princess Helen (upper right with Michael) will be annulled and the pair reunited. Queen Marie (below, center) heard the news of Carol's return while en route to Oberammergau.

RURAL HOME DESTROYED; OWNERS AWAY

SECOND TIME IN A YEAR THAT THE PHILLIPS LOSE HOME

Mr. Phillips was at work in Bryan and Mrs. Phillips had gone to College Station. House and furnishings and all personal property was a total loss. The origin of the fire is a mystery as there was no fire in the house, it is said, when Mrs. Phillips left.

The fire Wednesday was the second one experienced by the Phillips family within the past year. Some months ago their home, located on the same site, was burned to the ground with a total loss of house and other property.

The loss sustained yesterday was estimated to be approximately $1,500 on the home and about $500 on other property. Some insurance was carried on the home.

Making SOS Calls of No Purpose, Liner Captain Says

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, June 12.—A rigorous federal investigation of the Fairfax-Pintis disaster in which fog, flaming oil and a ship which sank in 20 minutes were the background of a sea tragedy taking 46 lives, started today.

Captain Archibald Brooks of the Fairfax testified the disaster was over so quickly any SOS calls could not have brought help quickly enough to cut down the loss of life.

The list of dead or missing is composed of 13 Fairfax passengers, 19 Pintis crew members and 14 Fairfax crew members.

Brooks admitted his ship was traveling 11 knots through a fog at the time of the collision and that was not a moderate speed. He added he ordered the radio operator to send SOS signals but the operator was unable to do so because the apparatus was disabled by fire.

Judge Davis Gives Formal Invitation To Come Here

JENKINS IS PRESIDENT

Veteran From Bryan Will Preside At Meeting Here

Telegrams from Judge W. C. Davis and C. E. Griesser, chief of the Bryan fire department, this afternoon from San Angelo were to the effect that the convention of the Texas State Firemen's Association had voted unanimously to hold the 1931 convention of the organization in Bryan.

The matter of the convention city was settled at the final session of the convention this morning. Judge W. C. Davis addressed the convention, formally extending the invitation to come to Bryan next year and pointing out the many advantages which the city offered.

At the annual election of officers, C. E. Jenkins, veteran member of Protection Engine Company No. 1, of Bryan, which he joined June 8, 1885, was elected president of the association and will have the honor of presiding over the 1931 convention in his home city.

Considerable sentiment for Bryan for the 1931 meeting was created here at the time the first short course for firemen was staged at Texas A. and M. College and at Bryan. Firemen from all sections of the state attended and were enthusiastic about the short course and the reception and cooperation given them in this city. One possibility, in connection with holding the 1931 convention here, is that a short course may be held at practically the same time.

The annual convention attracts several hundred firemen, representing all sections of the state, and it is expected that the meeting here next year will be the largest delegate convention ever held in Bryan and the largest, in point of attendance, with the exception of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce convention held in May 1929.

TEXAS EPWORTH LEAGUE PRESIDENT IS CHOSEN

(By Associated Press)

JACKSONVILLE, June 12.—Ernest Roberts of Jacksonville has been elected president of the Texas Conference Epworth League.

Early Kay of Houston was named vice president; Miss Bernice Dent, Nacogdoches, secretary; Mondrick Gorzycki College Station, treasurer, and Miss Morris Medley of Beaumont, era agent.

As Dr. Thos. Gordon Watts and his family were enroute to Koppe bridge on the Brazos river, via Wellborn, on Tuesday afternoon, their car collided with that of a tourist named Crockett, enroute from Memphis, Tenn., to Houston.

Both cars were proceeding south at the crossing over the railroad this side of Wellborn, with the tourist's car attempting to pass Dr. Watts from the right hand side. Evidently the driver of the tourist car was unfamiliar with the road at that point and failed to anticipate the narrowness of the grade and to avoid going in the ditch it was necessary for him to strike the front wheels and fenders on the Watts car.

Both cars suffered some damage to axles, steering gears, wheels and fenders, but the occupants all fortunately escaped injury. Crockett was accompanied by his mother and brother.

Improvement of Old San Antonio Trail Assured by R. S. Sterling; Delivers Address at Normangee

To the Editor of The Eagle:

NEW YORK, June 12.—Just back from Washington. Had a nice chat with President Hoover. He is looking fine, and in awful good humor. Had the pleasure of keeping Senator Dave Reed waiting till Mr. Hoover and I went over all the different "propositions." Dave will vote for the tariff. He is only waiting to be begged. About a week from Saturday Mr. Hoover is going to let off, for good behavior, about 400 of his handicaps, but going to keep 96 of the worst ones in, and make 'em listen to Senator Johnson during these crisp Washington days of July.

The cotton market continued off today. Futures closed from 30 to 40 points down. Local spots hit a new low, being quoted from 12 1/4 to 12 3/4 cents.

Yours,

WILL.

At Normangee, where the business houses closed and all arrangements were made to receive the visitors, Chairman Sterling made an address in which he stated he was for the improvement of the Old Spanish Trail across the state from the Rio Grande river to historic Caddo Lake, chairman of entertainment, H. N. Sandall, announced that on that auspicious occasion Navasota was host to former Governor Dan Neff, present Governor Dan Moody and future Governor R. S. Sterling. He then announced the singing of the "Texas Bluebonnet Song," by local female sextette with the author as one of the reception according to the state

Many Farmers Attend 1-Day Dairy Short Course at A. & M. Saturday; Talk of Cooperative Milk Delivery

(By NELL BENTLEY)

It is estimated that at least forty farm families of Brazos county were represented among the seventy or more men and women who attended the one day dairy short course held at A. and M. College on Saturday, June 7, through the co-operation of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce and the Dairy Husbandry department of the college.

During the forenoon session, which opened at 9:30, Prof. E. W. Renner talked on the care of cream and care and adjustment of the separator. Prof. Renner stressed the importance of keeping milk free from contaminations that might carry infections and contagious diseases as well as emphasizing cleanliness and proper cooling as a means of avoiding unpleasant flavors in butter and other dairy products, thus improving the grade of cream offered to the market.

Prof. A. L. Darnell also appeared on the morning program, discussing the care of dairy cows, with special attention to feeding schedules. The relation of well balanced rations to milk production and the importance of pastures, roughage and concentrates in the dairy cow's diet, were set forth in a comprehensive manner by Prof. Darnell.

During the noon intermission, a lunch was served to those attending the day's program, through courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce and the Dairy department, and the program was resumed at 1 o'clock p.m., with J. L. Thomas, dairy specialist with the Extension Service, presenting cow-testing associations and the value of daily milk records in dairy farming.

Mr. Thomas cited data compiled from work done among dairy farmers in other sections of Texas which demonstrated the value of testing and milk records over several months or a year's period, in giving farmers an accurate and dependable record of profits or losses from each cow in their herds. Testing and regular record keeping, according to Mr. Thomas, is helping to weed out the border cows in Texas herds and is helping many Texas farmers to build up herds of higher production and greater profits per cow.

Dr. C. N. Shepherdson followed Mr. Thomas with a careful explanation of how testing may be carried on by mail milk samples, if delivery can not be made direct from the farm to the testing station.

It is proposed to organize a cow testing association in Brazos county in the near future, through which every farmer having a herd of not less than 5 cows may secure monthly test on each cow for 12 months for the nominal fee of $1.50 per cow. The records from these cream tests, together with daily milk and feed weight records to be kept at the farms, will give a check on every cow subjected to Hammond, president of the Colored State Medical Dental and Pharmaceutical Association, who, accompanied by his wife, went to Fort Worth today for the annual meeting where Dr. Hammond will preside.

B. & J. Sales Co.

The women of the First Baptist Church of Milligan will stage a barbecue Thursday night, June 12 at 8 o'clock on the church lawn and the public is cordially invited to attend. The proceeds of the affair will go towards the paying for the seats of the church.

"Bryan has a good asset in the type of its colored citizenship," said a Bryan man today. And tangible evidence of this is Dr. William A. Hammond, president of the Colored State Medical Dental and Pharmaceutical Association, who, accompanied by his wife, went to Fort Worth today for the annual meeting where Dr. Hammond will preside.

Pioneer Family Documents Added To Texas U. Library; Pieces of More Than 100 Years Ago Found

AUSTIN, June 11.—Recent acquisitions for the archives of the University of Texas library, secured through the efforts of J. Everett Haley, collector in research in the social sciences, include the family papers of a number of early Texas settlers.

More than two hundred pieces dating from 1855 to 1914 are included in the R. T. Milner papers, which have just been added to the library's collection. Mr. Milner was president of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College for many years. Among these papers are two letters from John H. Reagan, as well as others from other prominent Texans. There is also a copy of the Henderson Times for May 21, 1846, in the collection.

Walter C. Cochran of Midland has presented the library with two works in scripts, "A Trip to Montana in 1869," and "A Trip to Mexico, in 1864."

Mrs. E. O. McWhorter of Longview donated a collection of five original documents dated from 1863 to 1874, together with a "History of Longview's Newspapers," and "A Sketch of Longview and Gregg County, 1830-1839."

The Henson family papers, covering the years 1825-1871, were presented to the library by J. H. Henson of Henderson. These papers included about two hundred documents, as well as an 1865 copy of a Shreveport, La., newspaper.

Mrs. M. A. Mitchell of Longview gave the library the papers of F. A. Glenn, former state superintendent of schools, including some fifty documents dating from 1887 to 1888. Many of the educational items in this group are of considerable value. Mrs. Mitchell also donated some 100 documents of a personal and family nature, covering the years 1760-1888.

In the Nathaniel Wyche Hunter papers, given by Miss Kate Hunter of Palestine and other heirs, are copies of Civil War letters from the battle front, dating from 1860 to 1965. There are also original copies of two letters from Sam Houston to Mrs. Mary M. Carr and a number of the Mesilla Times of New Mexico, dated August 24, 1861.

The Tucker Royall collection of papers were deposited in the library by Tucker Royall in memory of his father, N. R. Royall. Included in this group are nine record books of a commercial company in East Texas relating particularly to cotton, during the period from 1872 to 1894.

G. R. Farmer of Henderson gave the library a copy of a statement from Anthony Butler to Reuben M. Potter, made in 1841, and a general order of Robert E. Lee, as well as five numbers of Texas newspapers from 1862 to 1864.

A copy of "Reminiscences of the South Plains," was given the library by R. C. Burns of Lubbock. This is particularly interesting, it was pointed out, because material concerning the Plains is just beginning to assume historical significance.

Copies of twelve miscellaneous documents relating to the early history in Texas of the Hill, Kerr and Thomson families were presented by Mrs. Lucy Hill Jones.

The James H. Starr papers were given the library by H. W. McGee of Marshall. Included in this group also were thirteen numbers of the Redlander, one of the early newspapers of Texas, published in San Augustine, dating from 1841 to 1842, as well as 21 other papers of later dates.

The library has also secured the W. D. Twichell collection of maps and photographs relating to West Texas ranch lands, particularly

GRAND ARMY TENTS AGAIN AT FORTIETH REUNION

Survivors of the once mighty army of the South lived under canvas again at the 40th Confederate reunion at Biloxi, Miss., which was held last week. In the top view are shown army tents which sheltered the veterans and at the bottom the old soldiers at Camp Sneed fighting over again the battles in which they took part as youths. Gen. R. A. Sneed of Oklahoma City (inset right) is the retiring commander and Gen. L. W. Stephens (inset left) of Coushatta, La., was elected commander.

BIGGER BRYAN

COMMUNITY BUILDERS AIM TO DEVELOP THIS TERRITORY

Community building is a serious work, regardless of the fact that the term descriptive of it is often frequently used and often unthinkingly. But to build a community means taking an active interest in all improvements and betterments—municipal expansion of all sorts, school, home and church building. These are works that require thought and effort and money.

Today Bryan stands at the cross roads. Up to this time this city and the community of which it is the logical center, has prospered and has grown steadily. The people resident here have, in the main, been happy and have forged ahead, building homes, educating their children and doing their share in all movements for civic betterment. This work has been possible through a close cooperation between the farmer and worker and the business man.

The business firms of Bryan, which have served this community for many years and which have played an important part in its development—furnishing leaders and aiding materially in the financial phase—have been independent mercantile houses, owing allegiance only to the community they served and with its continued development their chief interest.

In recent years large aggregations of capital have sought outlets and one development has been the chain store. These units, scattered here and there throughout the country, in constantly increasing number, are sapping the communities in which they are located of a material part of the capital which, heretofore, has been available for community upbuilding.

The profits which the foreign owned chain store makes go from this community not to return. They may be invested in another store, that will sap some other community, but they will not come back here for investment or for the upbuilding of this community.

On the other hand, a large part of the profits of the independent businesses of this community have been invested in Bryan or its trade territory. Any casual knowledge of the city's history and growth makes this apparent.

Whether this investment in Bryan's future will continue or not depends very largely upon the direction the purchases made by the residents of this community take. If they go to the foreign owned chain store in increasing volume then capital for expansion here will be limited and growth will cease.

If they go, as they have in the past, into independently owned mercantile channels, then capital for development will not be curtailed and we may expect continued investment in Bryan and continued growth and progress.

Which do you want, Mr. Resident?

Watch for the home owned business label. It is a hall mark of fair dealing.

Associated Community Builders, Inc.

"Consider this community's future when you spend that dollar."

I shall appreciate every vote cast for me and promise you my best services if you should see fit to honor me by electing me to the office.

Yours for improved conditions in rural education.

D. J. McDONALD.

Former Baptist Minister Here to Leave June 17 With Party to Tour Europe; Aids Church Work There

Dr. Jno. A. Held of Waco, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of Bryan, passed through here today en route to Houston where on Tuesday, June 10, he with his party of select people will sail on the Guadalupe to visit ten countries and as many of the great capitals.

He will land in Plymouth. Go to London where he will make a careful study of that great city with his party. He will then travel to Scotland and visit Edinburgh in Sitzerland they will visit Lucerne and Interlaken. They will make the trip by steamer on the Lake of the Four Cantons to Flüelen and the Willam Tell country.

At Venice, where history has enshrined art, commerce and the delight of social pleasure, forever, for every lover of the beautiful and the charm of nature at its best, they will spend several days and then travel down to Naples.

Then the party will visit Pompeii, Visuvius, the Isle of Capri, and the Grotto and Sorrento. Here they will go by rail to Genoa, Nice, on the French Riviera, and motor to Monte Carlo and Mentone over the Grande and Petite Corniche.

Munich and Oberammergau and the Passion Play will claim their time and attention. Here they will make a careful study of the play. Dr. Held, who is personally acquainted with the Anton Sneed family, will gather special material for his lectures, which he is giving in connection with his work.

Austria and in the Holy Land. In Bulgaria Dr. Held is helping the First Baptist Church of Gypsies in the world to build a church house.

A number of Baptists have contributed to this cause, and through him this special work was made possible.

His major interest is centered in the Baptist work in Vienna, Austria. There, through the kindness and interest of a friend in Eldorado, Ark., he was enabled to send $1,000 a year for three years. The war had so greatly crippled the Baptist work in this metropolitan city, that this timely gift saved the cause and makes it possible to carry on.

He has also aided the Baptist work in other places. Thus his tour has a peculiar interest and his return to take charge of the work among the European races in Texas with such a background as he has, is especially fitted for the work for which he has been elected by the State board.

BARBECUE AT MILLICAN

The Milligan Baptist church will serve a barbecue supper Thursday, June 12, at 8 o'clock at the church. Plate 50 cents. You are invited to come and bring someone with you.

Mrs. Frances Campbell of Dallas is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Kay Halsell and Mr. Halsell at their home on College avenue.

BETTER COTTON—OR LESS

The economic condition of Texas, especially with relation to agriculture, recently had the attention of University of Texas men and other officials and individuals who are concerned in economic and development service. Of particular significance to such a section as the Bryan trade territory, primarily an agricultural area with no other industry of consequence, is the statement of Dr. R. A. Cox, head of the University's business research bureau. He suggested that the deterioration in the quality of cotton staple was one of the chief handicaps to agriculture in this state.

Speaking of this Dr. Cox said, "In the meantime, Texas cotton has decreased in quality to such an extent that it has meant a loss of $70,000,000 to Texas farmers in the last seven or eight years." Although Texas is the leading state in the Union in the value of its agricultural product, being in the billion dollar class, such a loss must be felt over a wide circle and the process of absorbing this is bound to bring about a less healthy condition than otherwise might be the case.

The deterioration of the cotton staple is said to be due to two causes. One is the gradual impoverishment of the soil by a one crop system or by washing and leaching, and the other is the low quality of seed, due either to mixing or to lack of selection. These conditions may be remedied by the use of fertilizer or by crop rotation, and, in many cases, by terracing, and by the planting of better seed.

The chief trouble from this condition is found in foreign markets where American cotton once reigned supreme. In that day it was longer and stronger than any other and though higher priced than Egyptian, for example, was regarded as worth the difference. But today, with American cotton so far off in quality as to be little or no better than that grown in Egypt or India or China, the product of these other countries gets the call simply because it can be purchased at a lower price and still show a profit to all interested in the process of growing and moving to market. Labor costs—all the costs of production—are so low, compared with those recorded in this country that the producer from the Asiatic continent or North Africa has a pronounced advantage.

That it is possible for the cotton farmer of this country to raise better cotton is a fact easily demonstrated. Recent reports of a checkup of cotton received by one gin in Bryan showed this to be the case. While there was not a great deal of cotton of long staple, there was left little doubt, after going over the figures, but that by using better seed and by fertilizing or by building up the fertility of the soil through a system of crop rotation, cotton that would command attention from the most critical may be grown here.

There is reason to believe, too, that through the operation of the Texas Cotton Co-op, working in conjunction with the feedlot farm board, the farmer who takes the trouble to produce a long staple cotton will be able to sell it at a premium over the ordinary grades that will pay him for his effort.

Unless the effort is made to improve the quality of agriculture, including building up the soil and using better seed, then the American cotton grower should make up his mind to raise only that amount of cotton that is required to meet the domestic demand and forget the foreign market. This would mean a radical adjustment in farming methods in this and other cotton states, but there is a good chance that an economic improvement would result.

Will the Tariff Be Vetoed?

Within a few days, it is thought, the much discussed tariff bill—the legislation which bears the names of Representative W. C. Hawley and Senator Reed Smoot but the finger prints of Joseph Grundy—will come to a vote in congress. There is reason to believe, too, that the measure will pass both houses and be sent to President Hoover for his signature.

Much has been said—and not always complimentary to the president—about his proneness to seek investigations by commissions. Yet that is a natural result of his training. He has been accustomed to deal with facts and his thought no doubt has been, in appointing commissions, to gather facts so that he might accurately analyze the situation or matter in question.

But there likely will not be any objection to the plan of the president to have a check made of the merits of the tariff bill by trained business economists. Although tariff legislation never is popular with the majority, the making of no recent tariff bill has been accompanied by so many protests, both foreign and domestic, as this one. Also, there have been undignified quarrels and some scandals. In one case a member of the senate, thought a model of rectitude, was condemned by his colleagues for introducing into the hollies of tariff making the paid employee of the manufacturers' association of his state.

Just recently President Hoover saw fit to veto the bill which revamped the system of pensions for Spanish-American war veterans. This veto was overridden by both house and senate and by an overwhelming vote. Because of this there was much criticism of the president. But this pension legislation was largely of a political nature and it may be that Mr. Hoover, engineer and business man that he is, is not yet in such a state of mind that he regards all propositions from their political side, first, last and all the time.

But with the tariff bill, which is largely a business and economic matter, the president should be well qualified to cope and if he decides to veto it, after gathering all the facts and going into them thoroughly, there is almost certain to be a widespread approval for his action.

When President Hoover called congress in special session one of the primary purposes was to draft a new tariff law. The other was to enact farm relief legislation. In connection with the proposed revision of the tariff the president stated that the situation which demanded a new law was the economic condition of the farmer and that steps should be taken to draft a law which would give him the same measure of protection, if possible, that has been extended to the manufacturers of the country.

But when congress got down to the work of enacting a new tariff law, the leaders gave the farmer a slender dose of protection and then set out to dealing largesse with a liberal hand to industries already well protected. The net result, it is claimed, is a bill that will add immeasurably to the profits of manufacturers which have been favored by protective tariffs since the enactment of the McKinley bill, and that while the farmer is given some protection the increased duties on a thousand and one other articles will considerably more than offset what he has gained. In fact, the net result, so far as the farmer is concerned, will be, in most cases, net loss.

This condition in itself, if an investigation shows that it will result, should warrant a veto by the president. And the further fact that congress has given little heed to the reasons why, in his opinion, it was important that a new schedule of duties be drafted, might be regarded as additional reason for a veto. And it is morally certain that a move to override the veto will not gain the support given to that to make the new pension law effective. As has been said, that was largely a political or vote-getting move. The tariff will include certain economic aspects that did not appear in the pension bill situation and at the same time the uproar that has been raised in many quarters about the bill will make for many votes to uphold the veto, if this happens to be the president's action.

Community Builders

Community builders is a much used term—used so frequently, perhaps—that by many it is regarded as trite—but if its real significance once is appreciated it becomes descriptive of what should be our most important duty, since in its scope it includes the development of schools, churches, homes and family life and all the community activities and movements which make these fundamentals possible.

Last night a group of more than one hundred men and women, representative of the best citizenship in Bryan and Brazos county, gathered about a festal board. The purpose primarily was better acquaintance, the development of more good will and a scheme of closer cooperation for the upbuilding of this community—and by this we mean the entire area which looks to Bryan and which Bryan regards as tributary territory.

The keynote for this meeting—in fact for the activities of the Associated Community Builders, as the organization which met last night is known—was sounded by Judge W. C. Davis when he stressed the importance of appreciation for what the founders of the community had done and the obligation imposed on the present and future generations to carry on their work.

Judge Davis painted a vivid picture of the work that had been done by the men and women who made the present Bryan possible. He stressed the fact that this was possible only by a full measure of cooperation and a high sense of loyalty to the community itself, as well as to one another. And he urged strongly that the present generation had no more sacred duty than to perpetuate—improving, if possible—the institutions that had been founded and then passed on to them.

Bryan has come to be known as one of the best cities in Texas, regardless of size. It is known far and wide for good and efficient schools and for strong and active organizations. It boasts an exceptional mileage of paved streets. Toady it is one of the outstanding examples in this entire country of what is possible under municipal ownership and operation of public utilities. It is a city of home owners, of home lovers and of orderly and law abiding people.

Through the years Bryan has grown steadily—physically and culturally. This growth has been the result of a deep loyalty to the community and to a high sense of interdependence and cooperation. Only because the residents of this community have worked together has the present structure risen. Had there been clans and cliques and interests active against what was best for the entire citizenship, we would not have had the Bryan that we take pride in and enjoy today.

This being the case, there is every reason why every citizen who has any stake in Bryan's future; who has played a part in the upbuilding of the community; who has worked with his neighbors are fellow residents to bring about the present development of schools and churches; who has added to the sum of civic consciousness, to continue along the line that has been followed while these things have come to pass. Departure from the old ideals and old ambitions to follow false doctrines and gods will not make for a growth that may be compared with that which has been recorded up to the present day.

TIMBER AS A CROP

The question of reforestation is one that is attracting more and more attention from public officials and business men who see the waste that has followed the methods with which our forests have been leveled by the axe. Here in Texas, once a great lumber producer and still with a huge industry in this field, the question is of importance, just as it is in other states that have had a place in this field. For this reason some of the conclusions of Governor Theodore Christainson of Minnesota, should be of interest.

The Minnesota executive takes the position that if we are ever going to have reforestation in this country, the reforesting will have to be done by the government; if timber shall ever be grown to replace that which has been cut off and hauled away, the state and not individual citizens will raise the timber. Governor Christainson uses the word state in its broadest sense, to include every unit of government.

"The Federal Government will have to enlarge its holdings," said the Governor, "the states will need to make provision to reforest tax-delinquent lands that come into their possession. Cities and villages located where land is adapted to the growing of timber will need to be encouraged to acquire and develop municipal forests."

"The experience of European countries shows how some municipalities could materially lighten, if not entirely remove, the burden of local taxes by a wise and profitable administration of municipal forests. When the Government owns its own forests it can really enforce its regulations; it can insist on selective cutting; it can apply those scientific principles of lumbering, failure to observe which has caused the ruin and wreckage which cover large areas of this and other states."

"And there can be little question," Governor Christainson continued, "that if the State owned its forests, if it planted trees and tended them, the people would be a little more careful in handling fire in the woods. The public would become more forest-minded."

There is some reforestation work being done in Texas, under state direction, just as there is in other states, but there is little question but that much more might be done with benefit to the whole people. At the present time E. O. Siecke, state forester, is on a tour of certain European countries where timber conservation has been an established policy for centuries and where timber is planted, grown and harvested just as are other products of the soil. Without doubt he will bring some valuable information to the problem of Texas and the result may be more activity along this line by the state government. The natural resources of the state should be conserved by it and where they based policies have resulted in great waste and near exhaustion, then there should be reason for the state to step in and, so far as it is possible, repair the damage done.

According to the first census of the population in state and federal prisons, Texas has more prisoners who were guilty of violations of the prohibition laws than any other state. On Jan. 1, the census shows, 635 of the Texas prison population had been confined for this reason. This may, or may not, be a matter for congratulation. The census also shows that overcrowding is not an evil confined to any state or locality. One hundred state prisons with a capacity of 94,704, have 116,670 confined, with West Virginia the worst offender.

EDUCATING TEXAS NEGROES

In an article in the Dallas News, of those kinds. Their attention under the caption, "Foundations was attracted—so runs the story—Aid Educating Texas Negroes," to the somewhat extra-legal character Alonzo Wason calls attention to her labors by the beneficent conference of the superintend-ent effect of them manifested in events of public instruction of 14th homes of her pupils; so that southern states in Atlantic City, when Dr. Dillard began casting which S. "There are six or seven of these concern of the Rosenwald foundations," Wason writes. "It is to house rural negro school But, in addition to the General children in better school buildings Education board, which is distin-those which natural influ-guished from the others by itsense had designed for them, and greater resources, as well as byto inculcate the lesson in neatness, the greater extensiveness of its ac-cleanliness and beauty which are activities, only three of them have been made familiar to Texans by them."

Also Wason has to say: "Texas are the Rosenwald, the Jeunes and was the first of the southern states to put its negro schools under state Slater foundations.

"Mr. Rosenwald needs no identi-supervision and guidance at its fication in Texas, nor perhaps anywhere else. The Patron of the Jeunes foundation was Miss Anna T. Jeunes, Quakeress of Philadelphia, now dead. Her impulses animated a large fortune with a philanthropic purpose. The patron of the Slater foundation was

John F. Slater, wealthy Connecti-cutter manufacturer whose concern was to bring industrial education to the negro of the south.

Of the Slater foundation plan

he has to say: "The major conceiv-of the Slater foundation is to encourage the establishment of country training schools, in which the negroes may get their hands as well as their minds trained. Home economics, the domestic arts, farm shop crafts and agriculture are tought and by teachers who themselves had been taught largely at its instance, for the teaching force had to be created as a prerequisite of its purpose of bringing education of those kinds into the rural homes of the negroes. Essentially those institutions are rural industrial high schools. There were five of them in Texas 10 years ago. There are more than 30 of them now. And, what is perhaps the greater accomplishment, other communities are seeking the sub-vention which the Slater foundation provides faster than it can be granted. It is said of them that they make for the dissipation of racial prejudices and it is not hard to believe that that is one of their services."

The preferred purpose of the Jeunes foundation is to bring the simpler and homelier teachings of science into the homes of the country, negroes, domestic economy, sanitation and hygiene, by a process of infiltration through the schools," Wason continues. "Negroes to teach them had themselves to be taught, and to that fundamental task the Jeunes foundation has been and is being devoted. The story is told that a negro school in Virginia was under the teaching of a negro woman who was much more proficient in the domestic arts than in academic pursuits, with the result that, at the instance and initiative of her own convenience rather than at the direction of educational authorities of the county, she subjected the minds of her pupils to cultivation

Diversified Farming Putting West Texas on Map, Says Secretary of C. of C. on Return from Panhandle

Secretary Wilmer R. McCullough of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce has returned from Plainview where he attended the annual convention of the Texas Commercial Executives' Association in session there June 5, 6 and 7.

Mr. McCullough reports that there were 200 secretaries and other commercial organization workers present for the convention, every detail of which was carried out as if by clock work under the direction of Maura Hopkins, chairman of the local arrangements committee.

Among the subjects given prominence on the program, according to Mr. McCullough, were dairy development and diversified farm programs, with C. M. (Cy) Evans of Marshall, substituting for Bryan Blalock in presenting the status of dairy development in the Marshall section. Poultry development was presented by B. Frank Johnson of Paris; farm marketing by Grady Shipp of Vernon; live stock and chambers of commerce, by Frank Holland, Jr., of Dallas; Retail trade development, by Henry W. Stanley of Houston and manufacturing and industry by Ray Gill of Beaumont.

"Considerable time was devoted to the consideration and discussion of technical points in chamber of commerce organization work," says Mr. McCullough, while he reports that aviation and its relation to business progress, highways and increased trade volume and other features of transportation and business were allotted time on the program. John Boswell of Wichita Falls presented "Machinery of Organization"; Roland Laird discussed "Modern Trends in Aviation" and "Putting the Small Town on the Aviation Map", was the subject of Lieut. Josef Allen of Dallas.

Mr. McCullough made the trip to Plainview by auto in company with a party of other secretaries from Central Texas and spent some time observing farming practices and conditions in that Panhandle section. He says that wheat, the major crop of that section, is estimated at not more than 60 per cent of normal yield this year, but that many communities there have reached a point in dairy production and marketing which will help greatly to tide wheat farmers and their trade field over the loss from that commodity.

"Diversification is putting West Texas on the map of business and prosperity," says Mr. McCullough, who added that there is no question but that West Texas is producing cotton at a lower per unit cost than is possible under present conditions in Brazos county. Even then there is a decided sentiment in favor of more home grown feed and more cattle and livestock feed for market on the farms of the Panhandle, says Mr. McCullough.

M. E. Melton, manager of the Texarkana Chamber of Commerce was elected president.

Other officers elected are: John Boswell, Wichita Falls; vice president A. B. Spencer, Temple; secretary-treasurer; and Directors J. E. Bell, San Benito; Jack Hott, Fort Worth; Monte Owen, Sweetwater; O. V. Vernon, Amarillo; Sidney Kring, Corpus Christi; and C. K. Debusk, Jacksonville.

The site of the next year's meeting will be determined at the executive meeting scheduled to be held at Dallas in October.

Cars Jump Road Near Wellborn;
Highway Rough

The second automobile accident within a few days was reported this morning as a result of a rough section of road, on Highway No. 6, just beyond Wellborn. It is stated that a number of holes have been formed in the road at this point and any attempt to dodge them causes a car to begin jumping. Two cars have left the road at this point, for this reason, it is said, within a few days.

This morning the Brazos Motor Company towed in a DeSoto sedan,

The front axle and one fender were badly damaged, the windshield was broken and the top damaged.

The car turned over several times, but neither of the two occupants was injured beyond a few bruises.

The other accident at this point was reported Friday. Four persons, two from Waco and two from Dallas, were injured when their car struck this rough road, left the highway and turned turtle. Mrs. A. Y. Moorefield, aged 75 years, of Waco, was the most seriously hurt and is still in a Bryan hospital.

The Wipprecht truck was moving south on the street when the gas company's truck entered the street from an enclosure, evidently with the intention of also heading south. The Wipprecht truck was damaged somewhat in the collision and Pledger was injured when he was knocked from the running board of the truck. He was reported to be resting as well as could be expected shortly after noon today, with no development up to that time which would indicate serious injuries.

Michigan and Texas flocks of White Leghorns took high honors for the month in the seventh month of the 13th Texas National Egg Laying Contest. The Hannah pen from Grand Rapids was high by points and the Duke pen of Channing was high by egg production.

In the score to date the England pen of Ingleside, Cal., is high by points, with two Golden Rule pens standing third and fourth. This Brazos county farm has a pen of Barred Rocks and one of White Leghorns and the former leads the latter.

The Golden Rule farm also has one hen, in second place, among first ten to date by points, and three hens among the first ten by egg production. They stand third, fifth and seventh.

An unusual feature of the contest for the month is that thirteen hens had a perfect score by eggs, each laying 31 eggs. The Golden Rule farm has one hen in this list.

GETS IN RACE;
14 CERTIFIED

BIGGEST SCRAMBLE STATE HAS KNOWN FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

Names of 14 candidates for the democratic gubernatorial nomination were certified by the Texas Democratic executive committee at its turbulent Austin meeting Monday.

The field, largest in the history of the state, is listed below in alphabetical order:

Lynch Davidson of Houston, former lieutenant governor, who ran third in the democratic gubernatorial race of 1924 and a poor third in the three-cornered primary contest of 1926.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, elected on a "Me for Ma" appeal in 1924, when the democratic strength was badly divided and the klan issue was troubling Texas politics; crushingly defeated for re-election in 1926 by Dan Moody.

State Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, a stormy petrel in state politics for the past 20 years; withdrew from the lieutenant-governor's race in 1928; led the anti-Smith movement which resulted in Texas general election majority for Herbert Hoover, republican presidential nominee; now running on an anti-Tammany platform.

Paul Loven of New Braunfels, comparatively unknown over the state; running on a wet platform.

The second, that of George Stephan vs. The Texas Mutual Life Insurance Company, also was settled after all the evidence was in. The suit was for $2,000 and the company agreed to pay $500. Baron and Ware and F. L. Henderson represented the plaintiff and J. L. Sheehy of Waco the defendant.

Barry Miller of Dallas, now serving his third term as lieutenant governor; a party regular and long time political foe of his fellow townsman, Senator Love.

C. C. Moody, Fort Worth laundry driver, whose right to a place on the ballot was challenged Monday, it being contended that he is running in pursuance of a practical joke; the challenge was not upheld.

Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock, giant in stature, member of the state senate. Highly popular in his own home district, but not well known over the state.

Frank Putnam, Houston newspaper man, running on a dripping wet platform; a newcomer to Texas state politics, though a veteran of the sidelines.

C. C. Small of Wellington, well known in Austin legislative circles but an unknown quantity to voters in large sections of the state.

R. S. Sterling of Houston, highway commission chairman since the Moody administration took over the tattered reins from the Fergisons; has visited nearly every county of Texas during the past three and a half years; never before ran for office.

Dr. C. E. Walker of Grapevine, a political unknown.

James Young of Kaufman, former member of congress, fighting to stage a comeback after a number of years spent in political obscurity; volunteer candidate.

Two civil suits, set for today in district court, were settled. The first, that of Annie Johnson vs. The True People of America was settled out of court.

The second, that of George Stephan vs. The Texas Mutual Life Insurance Company, also was settled after all the evidence was in.

The suit was for $2,000 and the company agreed to pay $500. Baron and Ware and F. L. Henderson represented the plaintiff and J. L. Sheehy of Waco the defendant.

voices and the rendition of the song dedicated to the trio of governors.

It was after the speaking at Old Washington that the motorcade arrived in Navasota an hour late piloted by scores of Navasota citizens. Near a hundred and fifty persons were then served to chicken dinner by the Methodist women and following the dinner others were invited into the hall to hear the speaking. Local addresses were made by Mayor Jno. D. Rogers in welcoming the visitors; J. T. Swanson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in a word of praise and Judge T. P. Buffington who gave a ten minutes address on the history of Washington Park and Grimes county.

Chairman D. E. Clop presided over the meeting when the entertainment had been concluded and stirring addresses were delivered by Governor Dan Moody and former Governor Pat Neff. R. S. Sterling spoke briefly. Also Judge N. H. Hunt of Zavala county. Lateness of the hour prevents a synopsis of these addresses.

Immediately following the address of Mr. Sterling, he and the governor were taken in charge by Speaker W. S. Barron and carried to Bryan for an engagement there. They were to go to Huntsville via Normangee and join the main part of the motorcade for the remainder of the trip.

In the party were: Governor Dan Moody, former Governor Pat Neff and Mrs. Neff, chairman of Texas Parks Board D. E. Clop, chairman of Highway Commission, R. S. Sterling, County Judge N. H. Hunt, who piloted the motorcade all the way from the Rio Grande river. Chief L. G. Phares of the highway patrol and Mrs. Phares. There were others including newspaper correspondents and other members of the highway patrol.

In leaving town the motorcade paused at the LaSalle monument to get a glimpse of that shrine. Through efforts of Mrs. Stratton Baker, chairman of the LaSalle committee, the flag was flying and a Boy Scout was on duty.

Entertained

The opening number on the musical program which was given during the luncheon was "The Texas Bluebonnet Song," sung by a sextet composed of Miss Julia Owen, composer of the song. Mrs. Percy Terrell, Mrs. J. T. Swanson, Mrs. J. Wallace Brosig, Miss Clark Lang and Miss Frances Lake accompanied by Miss Katherine Sangster.

Mrs. J. T. Swanson and Mrs. Percy Terrell were soloists on the program and they both sang very beautifully. Miss Sangster furnished the accompaniment for both selections.

The stage setting was attractively arranged with pretty floor lamps and bowls of lovely blossoms filling the stage.

Hour at Washington

Washington Park presented a pretty scene this morning as car after car of visitors began to roll into the grounds and line up to wait for the arrival of the visitors from the state capital. The Navasota delegation, headed by a car bearing Mayor Jno. D. Rogers, Commissioner R. E. Powell, President J. T. Swanson of the Chamber of Commerce and Committee-man H. N. Sandall arrived at the park a few minutes before the appointed hour of 11 o'clock and lined up ready for the drive home when the exercises there were completed.

The grass was newly mown, members of the Washington Park Commission were in the park building early in the day, and the national and state colors were flying down from the tall flagpole, while light clouds held back the burning sun, making the day a pleasant one.

The Washington Park Commission composed of the welcoming party at the park and the two Navasota members, Mrs. J. Wallace Brosig and Mrs. S. W. Dean, were on the grounds early in the day to welcome visitors and to be present with the entire commission to extend an official welcome when the motorcade arrived. Those Governor Moody in making his talk to Navasota citizens and acknowledging the introduction by J. T. Swanson, president of the Chamber of Commerce said, "The only thing President Swanson failed to include in the assets of Grimes county in his speech was that Navasota had the best president of any Chamber of Commerce in the world." Mr. Peyton has a wonderful field of tomatoes, but of 92 tomatoes examined only three were found to be free from this hollow cavity or "puff." His acre of tomatoes was estimated to have more than 2 tons ready for market, but because of this trouble likely not more than 5 or 10 bushels can be offered for shipment.

But little will was found in any of the fields visited, though early bright, Mosaic, core rot and late blight were observed in most fields.

Dr. Taubenhaus stated that these diseases could be controlled by rotation and proper spraying, and that he saw no reason why tomato growing should not continue in a small way in Brazos county.

Even with the price unusually low, many farmers have found the industry profitable, Charlie Locke reporting $90 sold from one acre to date, and the Stetz brothers of Leonard reporting $190 and $175 respectively. Others have good reports, while a few report almost failures, due to excessive rains some weeks ago.

Lieut. and Mrs. L. R. Nachman have as their guest Mrs. Nachman's sister, Miss Adele Michael of Houston.

Dr. E. B. Reynolds of the Experiment Station; A. D. Jackson, editor of publications for the Experiment Station; Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Bentley and W. T. Carter of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who has spent several months in Texas carrying on soil survey work.

One of the features of the conference will be a tour of inspection to the Erosion Research station established last year at Guthrie, Okla., as one of a number of such stations to be located in various sections of the United States for the purpose of securing data on water and fertility losses thru the action of run-off water on cultivated areas and studying means for the practical and effective checking of such losses. Two of these stations are located in Texas, one at Temple and one at Tyler.

Plant Feed Crops

The tomato deal being carried on in Brazos county this year has at least demonstrated the possibility of the industry. Some have made planting crops, such as hegari, some have made expenses, milo, Sudan, peas, peanuts. Returns some a little money, and a few member, the A. and M. College have sold around $200 worth fromadvises that we need five acres one acre. It will be wise for us to for each cow, hence, a check up check up on these better yields and will show that our cows may return and learn why the success again go hungry, unless more feed if we desire to continue this acre is planted. Much of the corn is "past redemption," but peats, etc., can yet be planted in middles. The 80 acres

Modern Business Methods to Be Necessary for Agriculture, the Biggest Business in America

(BY NELL BENTLEY)

Agriculture is conceded by economists to be the biggest business in the United States today. The annual total production of agricultural products and livestock reaches a value exceeding that of any other industry recognized in the field of commerce today and the total number of individuals dependent upon agriculture in all of its phases, far outnumber that of any other industrial or commercial group.

In a day when efficiency experts are applying high powered methods to every phase of manufacturing, distributing and selling of all merchandise and commodities that farmer must buy every day in the year, it is not surprising to find that methods of farm management and agricultural production which were effective a decade ago, are out of line with other business movements of today and make it imperative that some means be found by which agricultural production may be speeded up and brought into proper relation with the markets and manufacturing programs upon which farmers depend for a realization of profits and a fair return on time and investment involved.

In this case, a study of such factors as soil, climate and vegetation brought to light the fact that this particular ranch was better suited to the sheep raising than to cattle raising. From two head of cattle to one sheep, the ration was reversed to twice as many sheep as cattle, with about one-third as many goats as sheep, and financial profits mounted rapidly.

Overshadowing during dry periods and at certain seasons of the year has been found to reduce the carrying capacity of pastures to a marked degree. With 25,000,000 acres of grazing land in the state, Texas stockmen should profit handsomely by a study which establishes such a schedule of grazing values and uses.

Cow testing and production feeding tests are bringing the same kind of efficiency into the dairy activities of the state. Not only is the boarder cow discovered through testing programs, but by knowing the production records of each cow in the herd a farmer will know just how much feed to give each cow so that she will reach maximum production without wastage of any feed or concentrate in her ration.

Breeding programs have consistently brought increased production to Texas farm herds, resulting in a lower per unit production cost and increased net profits to the farmer.

Certified seed, intensive cultivation methods and proper fertilization are increasing the per acre yields of many farms crops with a lowered per unit production cost and a higher quality product, both in the favor of the farmer from a selling standpoint. Standardized varieties for given market areas have proven an advantage to cotton growers in many sections and greater care in ginning methods had also proven a factor of profit to the grower.

Proper feeding, housing and breeding has brought poultry raising and egg production to a state of perfection which leaves no place for the mongrel or poorly cared for flock, while cooperative markets and standardized grading methods have further increased the profits those whose products are classified for choice market positions.

With every phase of farm production being subjected to close scrutiny and study, with scientific research being directed toward the solution of problems dealing with factor of production and marketing and with every effort being exerted to give the average American farmer an income from products that are ready for market at regular intervals throughout the year rather than at just one season of the year; it is to be hoped that America's biggest business will find itself and emerge from a period of readjustment heading the procession in the line of national commercial progress.

It is estimated that the use of modern harvesting machinery makes it possible for one man to do the labor accomplished by ten men in the day of the sythe and cradle, with a smaller per unit production cost, provided other production factors are kept in proper relation to sales possibilities. However, it has been proven a fallacy to overstimulate production in any line without first being assured of a profitable market outlet. Natur-free labor, all that fertile land, and yet the state buys the food for those convicts and spent at one time, this last year, $67,000 for feed for the teams on the farm. Poor management is responsible for the financial loss in those prisons on farms. A good common sense farmer can make the prisons pay for themselves. He can raise all the food for the convicts and have enough left over to feed all the inmates of the eleemosynary institutions of the state. I think they have a good man now, Lee Simmons of Sherman; and if they will give Lee free hand he will make the farms pay. And yet these two candidates, Sterling and Love, want to abandon those farms and build this $8,000,000 experimental industrial plant near Austin, for the legislature to run! What I want to know is how are they going to pay for that experiment? Where are they going to get the $8,000,000? Taxes—that's where. And we can't stand any more taxes on our farms and homes and ranches. We are already taxed to death."

Young said: "If you want to sell your prison farms and spend $8,000,000 on this experiment, vote for Sterling or Love." Young's attacks on his opponents were all based on his discussion of economic issues of the campaign, and were not, as he explained, personalities. "I'm sticking to the record of their public affairs and utterances" he said.

He declared that at the present rate the average citizen is likely to be taxed out of existence. "All over Texas farms and homes are being sold for non-payment of taxes. All over Texas counties and cities which have reached the legal limit of taxation, but must somehow raise additional revenue to meet the mounting cost of government, are raising the assessed values of our farms and homes. In the meantime, the land is
